

Student Led, Staff Coached Spiritual Movements

“My friend, Marco, and I have been talking about evangelism. We see it everywhere in the Bible but we not doing much of it ourselves. In fact, Marco has never actually shared his faith. What can we do to start doing evangelism?”

-Minh, sophomore from Vietnam at Normandale Community College who trusted Christ in America

“We have tried to do evangelism in the past but felt ill-equipped. A lot of us love the Lord but don’t always know how to translate that into a message that will resonate with our classmates. It would be great if you could disciple us in evangelism.”

-Noah, senior at St. Olaf College

“I heard you speak and I want to talk to you about evangelism. How can I help my freshman Bible study reach out to our classmates?”

-Andrew, freshman at the U of M

These are three amazing conversations I had just this semester. The Holy Spirit really has prepared people to reach their campus and I get to be in the trenches working with them. The opportunity to reach the campuses of the world with the gospel is ripe for the picking. We do not lack the Holy Spirit’s power nor ability to connect with students. We lack trained laborers to reach the 150,000,000 college students of the world today. Just as there are about 6,000 unreached people groups today, so also there are about 6,000 unreached campuses.

How could you join with us in a greater way today to reach the leaders of tomorrow?

Could the Lord use you to build a spiritual movement on a campus?
